

14th February 1576

This morning we sighted a great land rising from the sea.

It was very high and mountainous, with snow on the peaks - though it is summer in these parts!

The coast is clothed in thick woods, and the birds, unknown to us make a joyful sound in the morning.

Good grief we find fresh water in the morning.

I wrote the fractured text above specifically to test the OCR engine!